Story by Mary Grover

On a crisp fall day when the leaves are starting to change color, a peaceful connection with nature is a wonderful remedy for a hectic digital day. As Henry David Thoreau said, "I took a walk in the woods and came out taller than the trees." Luckily an outdoor walk in the woods is only a short drive away. Sowams Woods is the perfect place for a quick dose of nature. This lovely 12 acre site is a mix of deciduous woodland and evergreen trees bordering Echo Lake. The property has several short trails which provide a pleasant walk across rolling terrain and is appropriate for all ages and dogs on a leash.

Trails lead into the woods and will guide you to Echo Lake, which provides interesting water and wildlife views. This beautiful location provides important habitat for bird migration. It is a stopping place for 130 species of birds. The great horned owl can be found living in these woods. The Sowams Wood property also includes two distinct vernal pools. In spring the pools are important to the natural ecosystem, providing hatching grounds for peepers, salamanders, turtles and other amphibians.

Sowams Woods is one of the 70 properties protected by the Barrington Land Trust. BLCT chose to preserve this property for its natural and historic qualities. Support from the community has made its preservation purchase possible. Sowams Woods was purchased in 2006 with major funds provided by the federal and state governments, in addition to donations by members of the RICC and private citizens. A dedicated team of BLCT volunteers monitors Sowams Woods, maintains trails, and removes litter & invasive plants. Scout volunteers have helped clear trails, build stairs and construct a trail kiosk. Today, Sowams Woods is protected for all to enjoy year-round.

Sowams Woods has a long and fascinating history dating many years before the Town's formation. Sowams Woods is part of the heartland for the Pokanoket tribe of the Wampanoag Nation, an Algonquian People. The property has special significance to the native Pokanoket Tribe, as Sowams Woods is believed to be an area set aside hundreds of years ago by the Native population for women and for childbirth, a place of peace. Sowams Woods is also part of the brickworks history in town. Brickworks in Barrington created Echo Lake and Brickyard Pond through digging brick materials. When the brickyard was in operation, bricks were hauled on ox-drawn barges to the canal in the Big Mussachuck Flow Path, which runs along Sowams Woods, to a lock on Narragansett Bay and loaded onto BLCT hopes you will visit Sowams Woods in spring to hear the peepers and catch a wildflower in bloom. Or go escape the summer heat under the cool shade and canopy of the tall pine trees. This October, BLCT invites you to enjoy a colorful fall stroll with children in Sowams Woods for an outdoor Storybook Walk in partnership with the Barrington Library.

BLCT Needs Your Help - Please Give Generously!

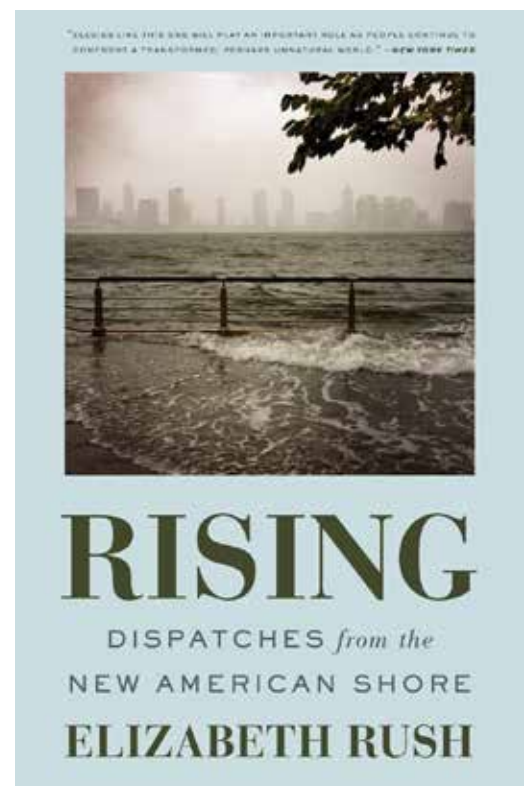

The Barrington Land Conservation Trust depends upon the generosity of its members and friends for the funds necessary to steward the 76 properties it has conserved, to protect the animals and plants that live within those properties, and to share the natural wonders associated with this flora and fauna with school children and residents of Barrington.

Please help to ensure that BLCT can continue the types of activities featured in this newsletter in the future by making a donation today. The Barrington Land Conservation Trust and all those who depend on its efforts appreciate your support!

Elizabeth Rush Interview on Rhody Radio

Unfortunately, due to Covid-19 restrictions, the Barrington Public Library had to cancel the March talk by author Elizabeth Rush. Ms. Rush was scheduled to speak about her book Rising: Dispatches from the New American Shore. Luckily, Ms. Rush had the opportunity to speak with Rhody Radio and you can listen to her interview by going to www.rhodyradio.org and scrolling down to the interview, recorded on 9/15/20. Don't miss the additional podcast of Ms. Rush reading an excerpt from the book!

Also - Keep an eye on Rhody Radio for a mid-October release of an interview with BLCT board members Melissa Horne, Cindy Pierce and Victor Lerish!

Outdoor Family Scavenger Hunt

October 22 at 4pm

Stroll the library grounds with Barrington Land Conservation Trust educators and discover natural treasures in our beautiful, scenic town. Scavengers will explore terrain near the duck pond and Barrington River. To ensure the safety of all, masks are required. Online registration begins on October 1; space is limited. Registration is required, please register through the Barrington Public Library website. Please forfeit your reservation and stay home if you or anyone in your party is not feeling well. The rain date for this program is Tuesday, October 27 at 4 pm. All ages are welcome.

Paddle Hundred Acre Cove

Celebrate RI Land Trust Days with a self guided paddle on Hundred Acre Cove in Barrington. Hundred Acre Cove is the third largest salt marsh estuary in Rhode Island and home to the largest known nesting site of the northern diamondback terrapin. The Cove is tidal, and paddling north is easiest during slack tide headed into a low tide. There are two upcoming dates where this happens:

Saturday, October 17th 9:00am
 Sunday, October 25th 4:30pm

Please double check the tide before launching. A good reference is <https://www.us harbors.com/harbor/rhode-island/barrington-warren-ri/tides>. Please note that Hundred Acre Cove is 10-15 minutes behind this table.

Access to the Cove is from the Walker Farm Boat Ramp off Route 114, just north of the White Church Bridge (Federal Rd. intersection) in Barrington.

No guide will be present, this is a self-guided event. Bring your own kayak or canoe and a personal floatation device.

Public Service Announcement: The BLCT is currently working to improve our newsletter recipient database, in hopes of increasing the number of subscribers receiving the newsletter via email, and decreasing the number of print subscribers, helping the BLCT save money. This reorganization is a work in progress, and we appreciate your patience as we fine-tune our communication practices. If you would like to transition from print to digital, please visit blct.org/blct/recent-newsletters/ and enter your info in “Existing recipient paper opt-out.”
